The general feeling is that if a thing is in itself excellent, its virtues should be proclaimed to the four winds of Heaven for the general benefit of mankind. Hence the proclamations made by Dr. Holloway through the entire newspaper press of the world, of the properties and operation of his remedies, meets with the cordial approval of thinking men. The value of the preparations as specifics for the various internal and external complaints peculiar to different climates, or common to the world at large, is conceded not only by the masses. but by governments, men of solenoe, and oandid observers in every walk of life. Can such remedies be too widely known?

The gunboats weighed anohor upon our arrival, and steamed up to within gunshot range of the fort, where an interchange of shot and sheli was had between our boats and the fort, about twenty shots being fired on each side. The shooting was very accurate on both sides; one shot from the fort struck the upper wooden cabin of the Essex, and tore a hole in her. The damage was, however, but trifling, as this cabin was a temporary affair. Several of our shells burst in the fort, and immense damage is supposed to have been done. At intervals between shots, a rebei steamer was seen manceuvering about. A powerful Union force is now encamped on the hights of the east bank of the Tennessee river, just beyond the range of the enemy's guns. The transports, after landing their oargoes, returned to Paducah, where they will take on reinforcements and proceed as rapidly as pessible to the point of debarkation near Fort

Henry. The New Uncle Sam met with an accident in returning here this afternoon, about 20 miles up the river, while running close to the shore; she ran into a large tree, tearing away her railings and escape pipe, and damaging her wheel house and barber shop, the latter to the great consternation of the proprietor of that establishment.

Europe by Mail. ENGLAND-LETTER FROM THURLOW WEED. [From the Albany Evening Journal.]

Southampton, Jan. 11, 1862. entered Southampton with evident intention of engaging the Confederate steamer "Nashville," an order from the Admiralty Office would be sent immediately to the naval officer in charge at Southampton, to detain the United States vessel in port twenty-four hours after the departure of the Confederate steamer.

I came down from London this morning to confer with Capt. Britton, our consul, and Capt. Craven, of the Tuscarora. This new phase to matters will necessarily change Capt. Craven's switch. Instead of waiting for the Nashville, Capt. C. will leave first, governing his course outside by the best observations and calculations he is enabled to make. It seems that something adverse turns up against us at almost constantly and are pretty sure to tell against us.

The government has, I believe, refused to Wig Factory, 16 Bond street, New York. allow the Nashville to do any more than would have been extended to a merchant Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers. No arms, munitions, or war fixings consul, gave me a copy of an authenticated account which shows everything provided, with its cut, making in all an aggregate of £666 6s. 8ad. I greatly fear that Capt. Craven, entangled in this neutrality net, may lose the opportunity, which he so can commerce is now bitterly hostile. (From the Liverpool Daily Post.) THE SUPPRESSED DISPATCH. The Trent affair is prevented dying out by the contreversies in the London papers touching the conduct of our Government in ONLY SIXTY CENTS PER GALLON reference to a pacific communication made on the 21st of December by Mr. Adams to Earl Russell. That communication was certainly intended to be conciliatory, and, if possible, to avert from the Federalists the anger of Great Britain. That was the intention. Earl Russell may have considered it in another light, and, therefore, making assurance doubly sure, took no note of it, but continued the dispatch of troops and ships to the American waters. There would be nothing unnatural in supposing that Lord Russell deemed war inevitable; but the Americans having rendered war impossible, the Government organs in this country endeavored to suppress Mr. Adams' communication. One denied that it ever existed; another maintained that it contained nothing of a conciliatory character. Ministers, anticipating interrogations when TURPENTINE FOR PAINTERS Parliament meets, published Mr. Seward's letter, Earl Russell's letter, and Mr. Seward's protest. Common people having now read these documents, will be disposed to think that sufficient attention had not been paid to Mr. Adams' communication. The conservative journals have, of course, taken this view of the case, and possibly the conservative party, when Parliament meets, may follow their example. "The more we consider the suppression," says the Standard, "as it may be justly called, of Mr. Seward's dispatch, of the 30th November, by our Government, the more flagrant does the outrage on the public appear. Here was a people smarting under an insult offered to its flag by a marauding commodore, and eager, above all things, to know whether the American Cabinet sanctioned or attachment of Washington take the earliest opportunity to communicate to their minister in London the pacific intelligence that the scizure of Messrs. Slidell and Mason, and their secretaries, en board the Trent, was not ordered by them, but emanated solely from Captain Wilkes. And, further, that they felt disposed to treat any reasou-able demand for reparation by the Court of St. James with the most friendly and favorable feeling. The dispatch of Mr. Seward bears date the Soth of Novemher, a few days after the arrival, ln Boston harbor, of the San Jacinto, with the Southern commissioners on board. As the language it employs in reference to the capture is of the utmost importance, we think it necessary to give Mr. Seward's exact expressions." The expressions were, no doubt, intended to commit the question in dispute to diplomatio action. 'No doubt can hardly be entertained," says the Standard, in continuation, "that the dispatch, according to its direc-tion, was read to Earl Russell, and became a subject of deliberation in the Cabinet.

not say, was just before Christmas; and if the report had been sllowed free way, no doubt one-half at least of the gloom which dimmed our brightest festival would have been removed. It was impossible, indeed, to dissipate the universal sorrow for the Prince Consort's death, but the fears of what may be termed an unnatural war would, at all events, have been mitigated." Last night's Gazette contains hitherto unpublished dispatches and minutes. They reach us very late, and we will not com ment on them. Lord Russell admits that Mr. Adams read the paoino dispatch to him

[Correspondence of the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser. LONDON, Jan. 14, 1862. We are still in the lull following the settlement of the war question. The diepatch of Mr. Seward has been published and criticised, and it must be stated that the result has certainly failed to add to his reputation on this side, either for sagaoity or logic. That is a circumstance, however, to which it is assumed he will be indifferent, as the document is supposed to have been prepared chiefly with a view to its effect in his own country. Still, there is a reviving hope that an improved feeling toward the North may now again grow up in the United Kingdom, provided such of your statesmen as are best appreciated here oan make their voices heard above the clamor of merely hack politicians and of renegade immigrants who are ready for any mischief. Curiosity continues to be kept alive by the respective movements of the Tuscarora and the Nashville. The Tusoarora has moved to a berth in the channel between the mainland and the Isle of Wight, and the Nashville occasionally makes experiments with her steam apparatus, which induces a belief that she is preparing to start.

An impression seems to be gradually strengthening in influential circles that the suggestions of France for a recognition of the Confederate States are again being discussed with our Cabinet, and a condemnatory paragraph in the Moniteur on the destruction of Charleston harbor looks like a premonitory symptom. A report is current, however, that the Southern agents have announced that they are authorized to offer in return for recognition three most important engagements, viz: First, a system of free trade; second, an effective prohibition of all import of slaves; third, the freedom of all colored persons born hereafter.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times says: "All interest in Gen. Fremont has apparently died out in Washington, so far as the public is concerned. His name is ecarcely ever heard, and I have met with but two men who have seen him since he has been ln Washington." The City Council of Baltimore have passed a resolution ordering all disloyal teachers in the public schools of that city to be dismissed, and Union teachers appointed in their places.

Sewing Machine! Warranted the Best in the Market.

ELIAS HOWE JR., & S. H. ROPER'S COMBINED PATENTS. Straight-Line Movements, Original Transperse Shuttle, Arraight-Line Movements, Original Transverse Shuttle, and Periphery Clamp Feed-Wheel.

The ESE SEWING MACHINES COMBINE THE most recent improvements, are nearly noiseless when in operation, run with the greatest ease and rapidity, and are better adapted for general purposes and family use than any other. They are not liable to get ont of order, are exceedingly simple, and are made expressly for real practical mility; they do every variety of sewing, from the finest woven tissue to the heaviest woolen goods, both tailoring and fine leather work. Any person may learn to operate them in a very short time. Any person may learn to operate them in a very short time.

The great difficulty with all other old-style Machines is too much complication, requiring so much constant adjustment, and such an amount of mechanical still and ingenuity to use them to advantage, as to render them of little comparative value.

But the Sewing Machines mannfactured by Greenman & True are not liable to these objections, as any person, ou even a moment's examination, will readily discover. They will do more and hetter work than any other Machine ever offered to the public, making the most beautiful lock-stitch, alike on both sides. Send for an off-hand specimen of sewing upon any material you wish, and you will then see how it is done.
